

“I am friendly, and I am here to learn, not just about the ever-changing medicine but also about them as a human being.”

About Katherine Tardiel, MD

Dr. Katherine “Kat” Tardiel strives to ensure her patients “receive the proper care, screenings, and evidence-based medicine” to decrease hospitalizations and improve their health. Her interest in medicine first began when she received a misdiagnosis as a child. “I strive to not make that mistake with my patients,” she explains. She enjoys caring for the senior population and likes finding commonalities between her and her patients to strengthen their relationship. She adds, “I am friendly, and I am here to learn, not just about the ever-changing medicine but also about them as a human being.”

When she is not caring for patients, Kat can be found reading novel—particularly those with move adaptations, baking, or swimming.
