

“I truly enjoy meeting patients, and I try to make a difference in their day with a friendly face, positive attitude, and respect.”

About Julie Allen, MD

Dr. Julie Allen saw the impact that communication and cultural understanding has on patient care when her father had health problems—and it inspired her to become a physician. “I truly enjoy meeting patients, and I try to make a difference in their day with a friendly face, positive attitude, and respect,” says Dr. Allen, who is board-certified in family medicine. “As I help my senior patients meet their health goals, I enjoy learning from them as well.”

When she’s not working or keeping up with medical research, Dr. Allen likes to shop for décor, cook for a crowd, cheer on the New York Giants and Atlanta Falcons, and visit family in the northeast. She hopes to see France and Italy one day, too.
