

“I feel what I do is a partnership where myself and the patient have to work together to reach our goal of better health.”

About Natalie Doyle, MD

Dr. Natalie Doyle, an internal medicine physician who specializes in obesity medicine, loves connecting with patients. “I feel what I do is a partnership where myself and the patient have to work together to reach our goal of better health,” she says. She explains that when first meeting patients, she listens more than talks to “understand the patient’s point of view and what their problems and goals are.” A hope that Dr. Doyle has for the current healthcare system is for patients to feel less intimidated. She wants all her patients to feel comfortable sharing their concerns. “I am always willing to listen,” she says.

In her free time, Dr. Doyle enjoys reading, cross-stitching, and traveling. She hopes to visit all fifty states.
