“I am compassionate and try to understand each patient’s background and situation that may influence their emotional and physical well-being.”

About Rose Lee, DO, FACC

Dr. Rose Lee has always found the human body fascinating. She loves making a difference in people’s lives and prides herself on being “an excellent listener.” She explains, “I am compassionate and try to understand each patient’s background and situation that may influence their emotional and physical well-being.” She emphasizes the importance of prevention and healthy choices in her practice. “I hope this motivates my patients to become active participants in their healthcare decisions, ultimately leading to healthier people,” she says.

Dr. Lee strives to be a role model for her children. She loves nature and enjoys hiking with her dogs. She is proud of her Korean ethnicity and is trying to improve her proficiency in the language.
