

“I learn from the wisdom of life experiences from the elderly, and I feel I have something to give back.”

About Srikar Reddy, MD, FAAFP

Dr. Srikar Reddy’s passion for service led him to pursue a career in medicine. “Everyone likes to feel their best when they wake up and at the end of their day. I try to help them maximize their potential,” he says. He strives to actively listen to patients and prioritizes shared decision-making. He explains, “We all have ways we can improve our quality of life, and I learn from patients just as they learn from me.” He adds, “I learn from the wisdom of life experiences from the elderly, and I feel I have something to give back.”

In his free time, Dr. Reddy enjoys exploring national parks with his family and supporting his children in pursuing their passions. Functional fitness is also important to him.
