“They have spent most of their lives taking care of others, and now it's time to enjoy their golden years and relax.”

About Cheryl McGruder, MSN, APRN, AGACNP-BC

Cheryl McGruder loves getting to know her patients and strives to help them understand their medications. She explains, “During their visit, I take the time to address any social needs and offer any help they may need.” She genuinely cares about the health and well-being of her patients. “I want them to know I am listening to them, and I am here to help,” she says. She especially likes working with the senior population. “They have spent most of their lives taking care of others, and now it’s time to enjoy their golden years and relax,” she says.

In her free time, Cheryl McGruder can be found completing DIY projects around her house. She also loves spending time with family and traveling with her younger sister.
