“I went into primary care because I truly wanted to be my patients’ doctor—the one who could truly be the quarterback and steer their care.”

About Andrea Melton, MD

A love of science and a passion for helping people led Dr. Andrea Melton to healthcare. “I went into primary care because I truly wanted to be my patients’ doctor—the one who could truly be the quarterback and steer their care,” she explains. She believes in “holistic care” that integrates all aspects of her patients’ lives. She is especially excited to help her senior patients “achieve a happier, healthier, and longer life.” She adds, “I have found that one of the most important things I can do for my patients is listen and care.”

In her free time, Dr. Melton can be found hiking and enjoying the outdoors with her husband and four kids. She also enjoys CrossFit and explains that her Christian faith plays a large role in her life.
