

“I enjoy building strong relationships with patients, as it helps me to make decisions that cater to their exact needs.”

About Serelee St. Cyr Sullivan, MD

Dr. Serelee St. Cyr Sullivan knew early in life that she wanted to work in healthcare. “My favorite part of being a physician involves teaching my patients how to manage their medical conditions,” she says. She actively listens and strives to provide individualized care. “I enjoy building strong relationships with patients, as it helps me to make decisions that cater to their exact needs,” she explains. She especially enjoys interacting with the senior population. She adds, “Studies have proven that the most important factor contributing to longevity is the quality of interpersonal relationships.”

When not caring for patients, Dr. St. Cyr Sullivan can be found enjoying the outdoors, singing, or spending time with family.
