

“I learned that saving lives and improving people's health is part of the job, and that's why I always knew I wanted to work in healthcare.”

About Sherif Amin, MD

Dr. Sherif Amin was raised in a family of doctors. “I learned that saving lives and improving people’s health is part of the job, and that’s why I always knew I wanted to work in healthcare,” he explains. His favorite part of his profession is the opportunity to make positive changes in people’s lives everyday. He describes the senior population as the “most warming and loving population.” As a family physician, he considers himself to be “like a travel companion who guides the patients throughout their life journey.”

In his free time, Dr. Amin loves traveling and exploring new places. He has visited twenty-eight states and hopes to soon visit all fifty. He is also working on becoming a licensed skydiver.
