

“I get to help keep them on their feet, so they can continue to do the things they love and be with the people they love.”

About Brenna Reed, DPM

Dr. Brenna Reed’s love of running allowed her to understand the importance of foot health, which inspired her to pursue a career in podiatry. Her favorite part of her profession is learning about her patients. “They are not just a foot, arm, sickness. Everyone is an individual person who has many experiences that make up who they are,” she explains. She keeps “honesty and communication” at the forefront of her practice and deeply values all her patients. “I get to help keep them on their feet, so they can continue to do the things they love and be with the people they love,” she says.

In her free time, Dr. Reed can be found spending time with family, reading, enjoying the outdoors, or running.
