

“Every interaction with a patient is a life-changing moment for both myself and the patient.”

About Felicia Jacob, MD, FACP

Dr. Felicia Jacob knew as a child that she wanted to work in healthcare. Developing relationships with her patients and their families is her favorite part of her profession. “Every interaction with a patient is a life-changing moment for both myself and the patient, and we learn something from each other at every meeting,” she explains. She always strives to “exhibit empathy and understanding of their complex issues,” while also treating them as though they are family. To keep up with the latest medical advancements, she often attends conferences and reads journals.

When not caring for patients, Dr. Jacob loves traveling and reading. She also enjoys spending time with her husband and two daughters.
