

“I enjoy the continuity and deep connections with my patients.”

About Wassan Kadhim, MD

At a young age, Dr. Wassan Kadhim recognized her interest in “learning about medicine and the healing of the human body.” Her favorite part of being a physician “is the opportunity to make a real difference in people’s lives by alleviating pain, treating illness, and improving overall health.” She strives to be “present” with her patients through active listening, compassion, empathy, and reliability. “I enjoy the continuity and deep connections with my patients,” she says. She emphasizes the importance of preventative care in her practice and likes educating patients and their families on their conditions.

Dr. Kadhim loves spending her free time with her family. She also enjoys making art, especially clay work and pottery.
