About Neelam Mistry, MD

“I chose to become a physician because this career combines two things I love: helping others be the best that they can be, and analytical thinking,” Dr. Neelam Mistry explains. Interacting with her patients and colleagues is her favorite part of her profession. “I love getting to know what is important to my patient outside of the clinic walls and what we can do together to keep them doing the things they love,” she says. To keep up with the latest healthcare advancements, she reads medical resources and engages in continuing medical education activities.

Dr. Mistry enjoys going on nature walks, reading, and spending her free time with family and friends. She also loves crafting and making personalized gifts on her Cricut.
