

“The goal here is to improve the quality of life of my patients and their life expectancy.”

About Charles Henri Mbala Ondobo, NP

Charlie Henri Mbala Ondobo is passionate about supporting and comforting people. He builds relationships with patients by treating them with compassion and empathy and practicing active listening. “I treat all patients with dignity and courtesy,” he says. He likes involving patients in the “decisions about their treatment and their preferences.” He is a proponent of preventative care and encourages patients to make “healthy lifestyle choices.” He explains, “The goal here is to improve the quality of life of my patients and their life expectancy.”

When not caring for patients, Charlie can be found reading, playing sports, or spending quality time with his daughters. He also enjoys studying history and listening to classical music.
