“Most seniors do not have many years left to live, and I want to help seniors make those few years enjoyable as possible.”

About Mercy Kanyongo, MSN, APRN, FNP-C

As a healthcare provider, Mercy Kanyongo finds it incredibly important to show compassion and actively listen to patients. “It is important to be reliable, consistent, and show respect of patients’ dignity and autonomy,” she says. She likes “meeting patients where they are” and helping them “navigate the healthcare system with a goal of helping them to create a happier and healthier lifestyle,” particularly for her senior patients. She adds, “Most seniors do not have many years left to live, and I want to help seniors make those few years enjoyable as possible.”

In her free time, Mercy likes staying active by playing pickleball or going to the gym. She also enjoys watching movies and traveling to new places.
