

“Primary care is much more than diagnosing patients with conditions and prescribing medications; it’s about making my patients feel understood and heard to ensure they leave their appointment feeling better.”

About Hamzah Badreddine, M.D.

Dr. Hamzah Badreddine cherishes the opportunity to build “long-lasting relationships” with patients. “Primary care is much more than diagnosing patients with conditions and prescribing medications; it’s about making my patients feel understood and heard to ensure they leave their appointment feeling better,” he explains. He believes in preventative care and loves serving as an advocate for patients. He strives to empower patients through shared decision-making, explaining that he likes working collaboratively with patients “to help them overcome any healthcare barriers they may face.” He adds, “My ultimate goal is to keep my patients as healthy as possible, so they can maintain a good quality of life and have more good days.”
