“I’ll be very straight forward about their health, I’ll explain to them their disease process, and I expect them to follow through with their part in keeping them healthy and for us to have a good provider-patient relationship.”

About Jane Koroma, MSN, FNP

Jane Koroma was first influence to pursue a career in medicine while watching her mother navigate her health issues. She explains that she “wanted to know what was going on with her” and better aid in her care. She enjoys getting to know her patients and wants them to know that she “genuinely cares” about their health and their concerns. “I’ll be very straight forward about their health, I’ll explain to them their disease process, and I expect them to follow through with their part in keeping them healthy and for us to have a good provider-patient relationship,” she explains.

When not caring for patients, Jane Koroma can be found spending quality time with her family. She also enjoys serving at her local church.
