About Mark A. Oswald, MD, FAAFP

Dr. Mark A. Oswald has always been drawn to the idea of building genuine connections with patients while guiding them on their health journey. “I knew I wanted to be a family doctor before I even started medical school. I love the long-term relationships that are formed,” he explains. He is especially grateful to be working with ChenMed, explaining that he loves their model of “seeing patients frequently and staying on top of their chronic medical conditions.” He strives to “meet people where they are” and always approaches his patient interactions with an open mind and “without judgement.”

When he is not caring for patients, Mark can be found practicing yoga. He also enjoys beekeeping in his free time.
