“Put the two together and I am a natural for being a physician.”

About Adam Splaver, MD, FACC, FACP, FASE, RPVI

Dr. Adam Splaver has always had a natural love of science and a passion for helping people. "Put the two together and I am a natural for being a physician," he says. Cardiology was a perfect fit — a field he describes as elegant and full of remarkable technology. Dr. Splaver is dedicated to helping his patients navigate the healthcare system while optimizing their overall wellness. He builds relationships through open, non-judgmental communication, focusing on education and empowerment so patients feel confident and informed in managing their health.

When not with patients, Dr. Splaver loves to travel, explore new countries, and spend time with family.
